B. G. S. BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS JAN. 6

Bethel Grammar School's basketball club will open its season on Thursday, January 6, with a 4:30 game against West Paris at the William Bingham Gymnasium. At the close of school, the club was rounding into shape and appeared ready to bid for another successful season.

The starting line-up will be selected from the following group: At forward, Albert Taylor, Kenneth Delano, Paul Fossett and Dennis Wilson have shown steady progress. Frankie Murphy will draw the important pivot position as center, with Harley Merrill, Eddie Hastings, or John Marshall getting the guard assignments. Likely to see much action are Warren "Sonny" Hastings, Ronald Baker, Dick Emery, Melvin Olson, and Gerald Harrington. Seventh graders Herbie Adams, Richard Littlefield and Stanley Clough will be gaining valuable experience toward forming a nucleus for next year's club. The players have elected co-captains this year in the persons of Frankie Murphy and Kenny Delano.

The schedule this year calls for games with West Paris, Bryant Pond, Oxford, Norway, St. Athanasius, Rumford and Kingfield.

Prospects are good, interest is high, and hope is for a successful campaign for BGS this season.

MINERAL - GEM ASSOCIATION TO MEET NEXT MONDAY

The monthly meeting of the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association will be held January 3 at the home of Dana Putnam, Rumford Corner. It was decided at the December meeting to try to get together a year book of the club's activities. Members attending the January meeting are requested to bring a list of the various specimens found at the different mines visited with the club. The first of a group of mineral studies will start with the January meeting. Feldspar is to be the first mineral subject. Those attending please bring any specimens of feldspar they may have in their collection for study.

Those present at the December meeting were: Keith Foster, Rumford Center; Robert and Norman Davis, North Newry; William Welch, Dixfield; James Faulkner, Rumford; Dorothy and Dana Putnam, Rumford Corner.

HOT LUNCHEONS TO BE SERVED BEGINNING NEXT TUESDAY

The program of hot school lunches in the Bethel village schools will be started next Tuesday at the primary building. The lunch will include one hot dish and one-half pint of milk, for 50 cents a week. Milk alone will be available, probably at recess, at 25 cents a week. The lunches will be prepared by Mrs. Mary Philbrick.

It is hoped that the pupils can tell the teachers Monday how many will want lunches.

Lloyd Lowell cut three toes badly while working in the woods Wednesday.

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

You know folks, I am not going to beat around the bush, mince words, or pussy-foot—I have concluded that the New Deal needs to be branded just precisely what it is—Socialism. The New Deal has turned out to be just another 4-bit brass watch. And not like a circus watch where you are out only 4 bits, the New Deal will be a dead horse on our back for years to come. Even our granddaughter and grandson will taste the bad flavor—and keep on paying.

But something has gotta be done. We are up to our chin in Socialism. Not far around the corner is a Govt. precisely like England floundering into. England is now stuck with it—nobody is happy there, or likes the mess. But that's the way it is—they can like it or lump it.

So here is our own "Promised Land" we have more to do than sit idle and see the country go in Europe. The horse is gone—I admit that—debt is sky high—the income tax place gives us a nightmare—but maybe the barn can be saved. It would leave at least a roof over our head.

Sisters and brothers, few of you want socialism—I don't want it. It is time for a knock down and drag-out or we are a dead duck. Tell your congressman—and don't mince words—I'm telling mine.

Yours with the low down,
JO BERRA

ANNOUNCES INCREASES IN POSTAL RATES JAN. 1

On and after Jan. 1, 1940, domestic air mail rates will be increased to 6 cents per ounce. The limit is eight ounces. Parcels mailed on rural routes will be subject to regular rates. Higher fees also will apply to special delivery, special handling, money orders, postal notes and domestic registered mail.

ARMY'S REDUCED QUOTAS PUTS INCREASED LOAD ON LOCAL BOARDS

Brigadier General George M. Carter, Maine State Director of Selective Service, upset what he termed a popular misconception recently by declaring that Maine Selective Service Local Boards are "working harder than ever" since word came from National Headquarters that January and February calls would be much lower than anticipated.

"The Army originally asked Selective Service for a total of 20,000 men from the States and territories for January delivery, and that call has been reduced to 10,000," General Carter explained. "The February call is for 5,000, and the calls for Maine are therefore drastically reduced. But if anyone concludes that that makes the work of the Local Boards less demanding, the conclusion is erroneous."

General Carter explained that the fewer the number of men inducted, the greater the amount of care which has to be exercised in viewing each individual case, and that "paper work" is often increased, also.

"Without in the least disparaging the magnificent work done by Local Boards during World War II operation nor discounting the headaches they had," General Carter remarked, "it is pertinent to observe that the fact that we are now inducting only a fraction of the number we were inducting during World War II doesn't make the job proportionately easier. In some way it's even more difficult, takes a greater nicety of judgment when you're called on to induct one out of ten, instead of nine out of ten."

General Carter said the Local Boards of Maine are doing "a fine job." "That's putting it mildly," he added. "Remember, they aren't paid—except in terms of satisfaction of performing a patriotic service, without fanfare and sometimes with criticism. I believe the vast majority of the people of Maine are appreciative—and that's gratifying."

General Carter pointed out that the number of Local Boards in Maine is far less than the number under the 1940 Act, as is true in the country at large. "There were 32 Local Boards in Maine then; there are 16 at the present time," he said. "Most of our Local Boards have only one clerk; not a few operate with only a half-time clerk. All this, of course, throws additional detail work on the shoulders of Local Board Members. But they're taking it in their stride. They aren't complaining."

General Carter recently returned from a three-day conference of State Directors in Washington, presided over by Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service.

YOUR CHANCE OF FIRE LOSS

This year, according to the president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, fire will enter one out of every 100 American homes. In these homes, it will kill thousands of people, at least 2,400 of them children. And it will leave a ghastly toll of ruin and waste behind it.

If you happen to be one of the lucky ones whose home escapes fire you may think it's no problem of yours. You'll be dead wrong. The burden of paying for fire falls on all of us. A fire which destroys a great forest or a producing factory makes every American poorer, in loss of taxes, jobs, purchasing power, and national resources. Fire is the enemy of employment, production, and a high standard of living for the people.

Every American, as a result, has a direct and personal interest in

GEORGE A. MUNDT POST AMERICAN LEGION

During the past several weeks a number of legionnaires have given blood transfusions at hospitals in this vicinity. We of the legion are only too happy to offer this service to the community, however, our list of blood types of all legionnaires, and all veterans for that matter, is far from adequate. All veterans, legionnaires or otherwise, are urged to contact either John Compass or Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven and let them know your blood type for any future emergency calls. For those who do not remember their type, you need only to stop in at the Rumford Community Hospital when in that vicinity and the technician will type your blood. This is an important service to the community and your cooperation is needed.

Plans are underway to have the Post operate the lunch room at the new ski tow where they shall sell hot coffee, hot dogs, sandwiches, candies, etc. When opened the lunch room will only be run on week ends and on holidays. If conditions warrant, the lunch room will be operated every evening. Exact date of the opening will be announced at a later date. We want to wish the Bethel Ski and Outing Club all kinds of success and want them to know that any time the Legion Post can do anything to help out that they only have to call upon us.

As many of you know, among our many activities, the legion sponsors the beano games held every Thursday evening at the Post Home on Main Street. Games start at 8:00 P. M. with refreshments served during the evening. To those of you who have not attended, we urge you to do so for an evening of wholesome entertainment. To those of you who have attended the games, be sure to come again and bring your friends and neighbors with you.

May we remind all veterans in the town of Bethel and outlying districts that they are eligible to belong to the American Legion and are urged to attend our next regularly scheduled meeting, Jan. 11, 1944 at the Post Home on Main Street at 8:00 P. M., at which time they can complete applications for membership. Various forms of recreation are enjoyed by the members before and after the meeting. Come on fellows, let's all get out and join the American Legion. It's your organization and is here in Bethel for you.

fire prevention. His life and his home and his business are at stake. And so, going beyond purely personal considerations, is the economic health and prosperity of the community and the country. The billions that go up in smoke and flame are lost to us forever—and so are the lives of those who are burned to death.

Soon we will be in a new year. It can be a year in which loss of life and property by fire is cut to a fraction of past totals. Or it can be a year in which, because of our carelessness and indifference, destruction rages on. It is up to us to make the choice.

Flight of Business

What should a business firm do when it finds that wage demands have put its expenses up higher than the income it can reasonably expect? This is the plight facing many businesses today. Some of them are taking flight to fairer climes. Perhaps you have heard of the big textile factory that decided to leave New England. No, it didn't just go to the South. It decided to leave the States entirely and go to Porto Rico. It had to go somewhere. It had to stay in the black, or close down.

Our industries will not all go to Porto Rico, but this incident is a handwriting-on-the-wall message addressed to all of us. When a business reaches the saturation point, where it cannot collect more income (in the form of new business, increased sales, or higher prices), then something's got to happen. If it cannot cut expenses then it may go broke. This situation is tough on little businesses especially, but it's dangerous, even to big ones.

Glimmer of Prosperity

Maybe this thing explains our increasing rate of business failures. When the break-even point is so high and so close, even a little drop in income or a step-up in expenses can put a company in serious danger. It doesn't make any difference, either, that the volume of business today is so big. Most of our companies have to do two to five times the amount of business they did before the war, just to break even.

A Mutual Interest

American workers are smart. Their good sense is needed today as never before. They can do a lot to help industry get on a sound footing. They know we can avoid misunderstandings that are so common if everybody sees that industry's problems are also America's problems. Labor can seriously consider the important things. Labor can help work out solutions that are to the best interest of both industry and the general public, knowing that these are also very important to labor.

Take this inflation, for example. That old spiral, that always catches you right between the pay-check and the grocery store, can be scotched. One solution is greater production. Labor knows a lot about production problems. Are workers any less interested in higher output, because high output is something that also interests the management and the public? No, they still want production to be high. Increased production, if it delivers goods to the public, softens the danger of runaway prices. High output also makes it possible for the company to pay continued high wages.

Our Own Creation

Some American workers have had experience with businesses that couldn't pay. A company that is in danger of failing up is no good as an employer. Therefore, the problem facing the boss in his effort to show more income than expense is also the problem of the worker. If a business gets on the run (it may not want to move to Porto Rico), this indicates that something is seriously wrong. Ten to one, the income is not up to the output. Labor may have some of the answers. A lot of Americans may be fooled by the seemingly endless bounty of business. Government, also, is expected to give and give and give. Yet, it doesn't make sense to expect either of them to keep on giving forever. Neither government nor business ever actually creates a dollar of wealth. Each can give benefits only out of that which it receives. By the same token, our high living standards are actually the products of our own intelligent work and continued high production.

TENACITY PAYS OFF

I READ the other day how well Howard Lindsay was paid for the seventeen days of work during which he collaborated with Russell Crouse on Life With Father. The figure given was something like $250,000. But let's look into this.

I go back some years to the time when I first knew Howard Lindsay. We were both on the stage, going out in road companies, at a pitiful money reward. We didn't think so, at the time, however, for we were both enjoying our work. Money came second. After I found out that acting was not what I wanted, Howard went on, stuck closely to the stage. He went from small acting roles to property man, to assistant stage manager of road companies, to stage manager, to a director of Broadway shows, to writing plays and after awhile getting one produced; then to acting more important roles than he had ever dared to dream he would—or did he? He probably did, at that.

Howard's first play was produced by George Tyler for whom Howard had worked faithfully as stage manager, assistant director, and director. His faithfulness to duty created in Mr. Tyler a strong desire to see Howard get ahead. He liked this chap with so much integrity. The play succeeded, and from there Howard in time stepped right on up to the top.

During the years he was climbing, there were times when he didn't know where the money was coming from for next week's meals. I've known him to go through every sort of discouragement, including having others dependent upon him for living expenses—though I never knew him to look upon that responsibility as a discouragement. But during all the years I've known him, I've never known him to waver in what he wanted to do, I've never known him to consider deserting the theatre.

Has it paid off? Well, you know the answer, and you know that it has paid off, even though his close relative, his Uncle Sam, has stood right there looking over his shoulder and reaching out his hand for a large share of Howard's profits in order to finance wars and to meet other responsibilities. But whatever Howard pays to the government, he will always be rich, for he will always be doing the kind of work he loves.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

WHAT WILL THIS NEW YEAR BRING FOR ME?

For a comparative few the delibrations of this new congress which convened this week may mean little, but for the great majority of the American people in the home towns and rural communities of the nation the answer to the C-cash question is to be determined largely by how this congress carries out the platform pledges of the Democratic party and the campaign promises of President Harry S. Truman.

Unfortunately the answer cannot come soon. Likely it will be five to seven months into the new year before much of the proposed new legislation gets onto the statute books. For gathered here in Washington today are powerful interests representing the forces of many opposing factors determined to stage a last ditch stand to defeat many of the Truman proposals, particularly where federal government regulation is involved.

The powerful pressure lobby groups have already started the propaganda mills rolling in the fields of economics, education, health, extension of social security legislation, the farm program, housing, labor, public power, and reclamation. During the next few months you will hear much of "socialism" and "socialistic trends." Already the charge has come that the government is seeking to destroy the profit system and private enterprise. From the opposite source comes the charge that corporations are hoarding money, piling up surpluses and reducing mass purchasing power to create an artificial depression.

Hearings have been underway for weeks seeking to determine whether corporate profits are too high. Facts are that profits have quintupled since pre-war when they ran almost four billion dollars. During the years of the war when there was a measure of government control, profits leaped to 18 billions. In 1946 they were almost 13 billions; in 1947 they were about 18 billions, and this year more than 26 billions. . . . some sources say as high as 30 billions.

For the same period, however, wages have only doubled and in many of the non-union fields, have not even doubled. In the hearings before the senate committee the ser-poration heads pleaded that their profit dollars were only 60-cent dollars this year. But, so are the wage dollars only 60-cent dollars and the money in the pay envelope will buy less than right after the war before OPA was liquidated. There is some evidence to back up the charge that corporations are hoarding money. During pre-war years corporations normally paid about 70 percent of profits in dividends. In 1947 they only paid 40 percent, and this year only 35 percent, or just half of pre-war dividends. . . . and only about 6 percent went into plant extensions and improvements.

In the meantime, average farm prices are sliding down the Uchagan. Corn was down to the lowest point in two years and a further slide of all farm prices during the coming months appears in the picture, with the farmers' producing costs still holding the highest in history, about 7 per cent over 1947. So what this congress does about farm prices and other prices, what it does about wages, is highly important to the economic picture of what happens to the folks in the home towns of the country.

This reporter predicts that the congress will boost the minimum wage to at least 75 cents an hour; enact a rigid instead of a sliding farm price support program, and pass an excess profits or increased corporation tax in higher brackets to slash corporate profits. Further move to hold profits in line will likely come from strengthening of the anti-monopoly laws.

Six of the first 12 states having the highest per capita income are western states and believe it or not the highest is Nevada with a per capita income of $1,843. Other western states in the group are California, Colorado, Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming. Five of the top 12 are northeastern states and include New York, Connecticut, Delaware, New Jersey and Rhode Island. Only one mid-west state, Illinois, is in the first dozen. Number 66 on the list is Mississippi with $299 and next lowest is Arkansas with $396 per capita income.

UN-AMERICAN

NO one believes that Harry Truman is Joe Stalin's confidential agent in the U. S. A. because he talks about red herrings, nor does any one think Atty. Gen. Tom Clark is the Western representative of the Russian secret police just because he hasn't sent Wm. J. Foster to jail yet. These busy men already have 25 hours work to do in every 24 and maybe they haven't given as much attention to the growing threat of Communism in this country as it deserves. It now seems probable however that public sentiment will compel them to give more of their already scarce time to what Americans are at last beginning to consider a very real danger, namely—Communist infiltration—on a huge scale—in our schools, and in our whole national fabric.

It is difficult for the ordinary citizen to comprehend why the President, and others in high office, are seemingly so opposed to the continuance of the House un-American activities committee. About the most outstanding reason thus far given the public is that members of this committee are "headline hunters."

This nation is facing the most sinister and the most treacherous enemy that even history has ever known. This enemy has already suborned, and made traitors of, many perfectly good American citizens. The U. A. C. has brought these facts to the public's notice, and has done much to awaken the people to the realization that there exists a cancerous growth which must be destroyed if we wish to preserve our present system.

The very fact that left wing groups all over the country are clamoring for the abolition of this committee; the very fact that Representative Emanuel Celler of New York is reportedly moving to blanket its "destructive tactics"—should be sufficient to arouse the suspicions of a dead man!

Already letters are reported to be pouring in to U. A. C. members, supporting their work. But if we are interested enough in our future to write, we had much better write our own representatives in Congress, and the President, and tell them what we want done. They are our arbiters while they are in office; and they alone can continue or discontinue the U. A. C.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Table, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

At extended intervals, Marshal Stalin has met and talked with foreign interviewers. Among the Americans so favored have been Roy Howard, Elliott Roosevelt, Harold Stassen, and Walter Duranty. In every case, Stalin's remarks for foreign publication have been of an amiable and conciliatory character. Their basic theme has been an expressed desire for peace, buttressed by the statement that communism and capitalism should be able to exist together in the world in harmony.

These interviews have always been happily received in this country and elsewhere. They seemed to contain grounds for an optimistic estimate of future world trends. Unfortunately, however, there is an amazing contradiction in what Stalin has said for foreign consumption, and what he has told the millions of Russians he rules at home.

That contradiction is the subject of a long article in Foreign Affairs, signed with the nom de plume Historicus. The magazine believes this is the first time a documented study has been made of the matter. In order to obtain his material, the writer examined everything published by Stalin since February, 1919, which was in itself a heavy job of research. In this connection, it should be recognized that Stalin's writings are practically required reading in Russia. One of his books "History of the All-Union Communist Party" has had a distribution of 31,000,000 copies. Another major work, "Problems of Leninism," has been published in 11 editions, and the 1947 printing alone totaled 4,000,000 copies. It is extremely significant that none of his interviews with foreign reporters has been reprinted in his voluminous works in Russian.

A typical, and much-publicized Stalin interview was that given to Roy Howard. This was in 1936. He said that the Soviet Union never had plans for fostering revolutions in other countries because exporting revolution is nonsense. In 1943, in a letter to a Reuters correspondent, he stressed the alleged fact that the Comintern had been dissolved, and said that this "exposed the lie...that Moscow intends to intervene in the life of other states and 'bolshelize' them." Numerous other statements made by him follow about the same line.

So much for what the Marshal wishes the people beyond the iron curtain to believe. Historicus cites passages after passage from Stalin's published and enormously read works which show that a central feature of his theory of revolution is that the Soviet Union must be used as the base for the development of world revolution—and, if necessary, by armed force. This idea is repeated constantly, in various forms and phrasings.

Thus, in a passage which has been in print from 1924 to the present, Stalin says that "after organizing its own Socialist production," the victorious proletariat in one country should stand up "against the remaining capitalist world, attacking to itself the oppressed classes of other countries, raising revolts in those countries against the capitalists, and their governments." Certainly nothing could be plainer than that. It is a clear call to arms against capitalism. Of it, Historicus writes: "The supreme aim of world revolution is the logical outcome of Stalin's entire theoretical position...notably the thesis that capitalism is a single world system fatally torn by contradictions which can be cured only by a consciously directed socialist revolution. Granted these assumptions, the determination to use the foothold won in the Soviet Union as a base for world revolution, is elementary common sense."

Historicus states that one of Stalin's favorite passages was written by Lenin, and goes as follows: "We live...not only in a state but in a system of states, and the existence of the Soviet Republic side by side with the imperialist state for a long time is unthinkable. In the end one or the other will conquer. And until that end comes, a series of the most terrible collisions between the Soviet Republic and the bourgeois states is inevitable." Stalin quoted this bit of prophecy in an article of his own, and commented: "Clear, one would think."

The substance of Historicus' study is summed up in these words: "The ultimate resort to armed force is a logical development of the Leninist thesis that only consciously-led revolution can drive the capitalists from the stage of history. The assumption that the world has been fundamentally divided into two camps since the October Revolution runs through Stalin's writings from his early days and is grounded in his Marxist philosophy." In other words, he has never ceased preaching the hard gospel of Soviet-directed war and revolution to the Russian masses.

Historicus' article is important as a contribution to modern history. It is also important as a guide to the way this and other Western nations should regard pronouncements of policy from Stalin and other top communists. The obvious fact is that Stalinist tactics call for building up hatred and distrust of the capitalist world at home, even as an attempt is made to quiet the fears and suspicions of the people in other lands.

INAUGURATION

WASHINGTON is preparing for the largest, most colorful inauguration since Franklin Roosevelt's first when more than 500,000 came to celebrate—even though many of them could not pay their hotel bills because of the country-wide bank closing.

Although President Truman's inauguration will take place on Jan. 20, the celebrations will last for a week, from Jan. 16-23. Washington's clubs, embassies and legations will have open house and receptions for visitors; department stores will put on special displays; night clubs will have special shows; all of Washington's sight-seeing attractions will be open day and night; the Freedom Train will be in town—and the Smithsonian Institution will stage a special exhibit of gowns worn by Presidents' wives at other inaugurations.

The week-long celebration, which is expected to bring 750,000 to the Capitol, will be a gay, showy affair because its organizer, Melvin D. Hildreth, is an old circus fan and has been for 25 years the attorney for Ringling Brothers.

$80,000 Grandstand

The greatest single expense of the inaugural will be the $80,000 grandstand in front of the Capitol, where 12,000 invited guests will watch the President take the oath of office. This expense Congress will pay. Aside from the grandstand, congress has nothing to do with the expenditures for the inauguration. The money to run the show—about $200,000—is being put up by a committee of Washington business men.

Washington's business men, however, will not lose any money. Many hotels and restaurants have jacked up their prices from five to 30 per cent. The visitors who remain in

The gay, expensive inauguration of President Truman on Jan. 20 will be in sharp contrast to the brief and simple ceremony which marked the 1945 inauguration of the late President Roosevelt. This picture was taken at that last Roosevelt inaugural and shows a relatively carefree Harry S. Truman standing beside his former overburdened chief.

Washington for three or four days are expected to spend an average of $100 each.

President Truman himself is anxious to start his new term with a bang-up affair. He has stated that he hopes it will not be too plush or too expensive for people to enjoy. What he wants, he has said, is a "real people's inauguration."

The great bugaboo, of course, is housing. Together, Washington's 59 licensed hotels have only 12,000 rooms. The inaugural housing committee is expected to get 100,000 spare rooms in private homes. It also will ask each of the embassies to take in governors or other distinguished guests. Finally, Pullman trains on sidings will be used for sleeping accommodations and many of the visitors who cannot be housed in Washington will stay in Baltimore and other nearby towns.

Perfect Stranger

By Jack Mosher

After all, Celia couldn't help feeling sorry for the lonely young man, nor could she know how it would all turn out.

THE first thing Celia Brandon noticed about him was the way he sat. As if, she thought, studying the man at the corner table across the top of her menu, he had been propped up in his chair and was likely, at any minute, to go sliding off on the floor.

"Does he come in often?"

"Yes-s, Miss," said her waiter. "Every night this week, he comes. But he does not eat. He just sits and sits."

Celia examined her find more closely.

His hair was graying much too rapidly, and his clothes were much too shabby for Garibaldi's, which was on 52nd, just around the corner from the theatre district.

He rose and came toward her table.

"Perhaps," she said, "he hasn't the price of a meal."

"Then why does he come?"

The waiter's attitude, Celia felt, was a coldly commercial one. The way most folks with something to sell looked upon those who had no money to buy, and determined to put the waiter in his place, she said, "I thought his face was familiar. Yes, of course! It's Freddy Malone."

"Tell him," she said, "that I'd like him to join me."

"Yes-s, Miss!"

For a moment after the waiter had delivered this invitation uncertainty marked the man's lean features. But when Celia countered with just the right degree of warmth in her own—the degree one would extend to a man friend not seen in many years yet warmly remembered—his face came toward her table.

He walked unsteadily and she wondered if he might be intoxicated. If that explained his propped-up appearance of a moment ago. Then he was alongside, bowing just a little from the waist, and she was saying, "It's so good to see you again, Fred."

"Yes, isn't it," he said, "Thanks for asking me over."

His tones made her feel that he was hungry. It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark. And now that he was closer she could not mistake the suffering which lined his face.

More than food, she felt certain, was needed here. He needed good cheer. Someone to talk with.

"How about a Martini?" she said. "A pepper-upper, as they say."

He turned to the waiter, chuckling mischievously.

"A pepper-upper," he ordered, "for the lady." Then, when the waiter had gone off and leaning closer across the white table cloth, "Look!

It's damned nice of you. Having me like this, I mean. But I can't accept."

"Forget it," Celia said, trying her utmost to spare him. "I don't know about you, but I'm hungry. Let's concentrate on dinner."

"Yes, of course. The dinner."

"How about some sea food?"

"Not for me," He made a wry face. "I've just come from there. Maybe you took notice of my roll."

"I wondered what it was."

"It's the genuine article," he assured her. "A Clyde-Mallory Line freighter just brought me back from the Far East . . . You see," he hurried on as if he had just so much time in which to tell it, "I struck it tough in Singapore. Went out there to work for a big oil company. It wasn't so big, because it folded a few weeks after I arrived. I was on the beach three months, broke to the wide, before I got this chance to work my way home."

"Forget that now," Celia said, judging from his tones that every word must be an effort for him. "This spaghetti Italiane sounds mighty good to me."

"But I can't forget," he insisted. "And I think you should hear me out. Have you ever," he demanded, while Celia could find not a word with which to check him, "known what it is to be hungry, to starve?"

"I can well imagine," Celia interrupted, more firmly this time. "I've heard New York is no different than Singapore if it comes to that. He let's get on with ordering now, eh?"

"Yes, of course. Ordering."

He rounded the least bit let down. But he bucked up as the menu progressed.

"I must see more of you," he said. "You do me good."

"We do each other good, you mean."

"That's it!" He was as enthusiastic as a school boy attending his first grown-up date. "And look," he assured her, "I'll make up for tonight's dinner just as soon as I get placed."

"Don't mention it."

"I could get a job in Mexico. There's a fellow—"

"But why not try here in New York?"

"In an office?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what?"

"Had you ever thought of acting," Celia said as the waiter returned with a small silver tray containing a half dollar and three thin dimes. "You know what they say? If you can't make a go of anything else you're sure to click on the stage. And it seems to me," she added, making a fine show of waving the waiter and the eighty cents away, "that with the experience you've had knocking around the world you could put a lot of punch into playing."

"Maybe you're right. In fact, I know you're right."

"What do you mean?"

He smiled broadly.

"Simply," he told her, "that I AM stage. I've just been putting on an act here. Hehearing for my new play. I need a girl to play opposite me. She's rich as all get out. Money doesn't mean a thing to her. That's exactly the kind of girl you are in real life. So how about coming around in the morning to sign a contract? I'm Noel Howard."

"Noel Howard?" Celia didn't spare the name mentioned with awe around casting offices where she had spent months trying to get a small part in his new production—in any production. "Then, Helen mug!" she flung at him. "How about buying me another dinner right now? I couldn't eat a bite of that one for thinking I'd spent my last five dollars . . ."

"EASY DOES IT"

TO keep waxed floors in good condition, refresh the wax at periodic intervals after the floors are properly cleaned.

To keep varnished floors in good condition, use wax or oil, but never both.

Before placing small wash rugs, curtains and slipcovers in water, shake well. This removes loose dust and makes excessive sudsing and rinsing unnecessary.

When not in use, place a bit of borax in glass jars. This will keep them fresh and sweet until they are ready for use.

Rub a cut lemon over cut glasses to restore their natural brilliancy and luster. Wash in warm water, then polish with a lint-free cloth.

A small comb is a good gadget for removing hairs and threads from the brushes of a carpet sweeper or a vacuum cleaner.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

English Toffee

1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 pound butter
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 plain chocolate bars
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Cook the first three ingredients in a sauce pan for 10 minutes. Stir all the time to prevent burning. Add vanilla and pour into a buttered pan. Lay chocolate bars on top while the candy is still hot. Sprinkle with the chopped pecans. Cool and break into pieces.

If your rugs curl at the wrong ends, turn them on the wrong side. Dampen and press with a hot iron. Allow to remain on the wrong side for a few hours.

If sediment collects in glasses, pots or containers, place some vinegar in them, enough to cover the sediment, and let stand for at least 10 minutes. Pour out vinegar and wash in soap water and they will be thoroughly clean.

Wallpaper can be made washable if you will go over it with sizing and then with clear choline.

Rub your faucets and other metal fixtures with polish when cleaning. The oiliness of the polish prevents them from becoming spotted with water and will also tend to prevent rust from forming.

Store crack fillers in airtight containers in the repair closet so that they will not dry out.

Holiday Fish A La Mode

A PROTEIN-PACKED HEARTY DINNER DISH

FISH A LA MODE

Here's a hearty dinner dish for your hungry family when they come home after a vigorous day, either outdoors skiing or skating or indoors at school or at the office.

In any case they'll want a hearty supper of protein-packed hot food and plenty of it. Satisfy their healthy appetites with fish served à la mode on hot biscuits. This is just one of many ways fish is adaptable to the holiday season.

Haddock—everybody's favorite fish—is an excellent choice for fish à la mode. Haddock is available either fresh or frozen the year round. And if you want a new and different fish flavor, ask for pollock, a real economical buy. There are so many kinds of tasty, nutritious fish. Try them all for menu variety.

- 1 1/2 cups cooked fish fillets, coarsely flaked
- 2 tbsp. shortening
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup direct celery
- 2 tbsp. chopped parsley
- 1 tbsp. grated onion
- 1 tbsp. shortening

Make a white sauce of 3 tbsp. shortening, flour, and milk. Season with salt, pepper, and Worcestershire sauce; add grated cheese. Sauté celery, parsley, and onion in 1 tbsp. of shortening until celery is lightly browned. Fold into white sauce. Fold in the fish, being careful not to mash it. Serve hot over biscuits, toast, or mashed potato. Serves 4 to 6.

The World in Which Jesus Lived.

Lesson for January 2: Galatians 4:4; Luke 21:7; Matthew 22: 15-16; 23-25.

Memory Selection: Galatians 4:4
DURING six months of 1949 we shall have studies in the life of Jesus—in the first quarter events in the Galilean ministry. Passages of today's lesson are so grouped as to give a picture of the world in which Jesus lived.

These passages show that the world of Jesus was that of the Roman Empire, his province was Judea, and his native city Beth-lehem. Augustus was emperor when Jesus was born; Tiberius when Jesus was crucified.

The temple was still the center of Jewish religion. When Jesus was twelve, Joseph and Mary went with him to the passover in Jerusalem. Shortly before Jesus entered upon his ministry, John the Baptist, his great forerunner, came preaching in the wilderness of Judea.

Several sects were rivals for influence among the people, chiefly the Pharisees and the Sadducees. They were bitter opponents of Jesus and his work.

It was indeed the fullness of time when Jesus came. The wide conquests of Rome had brought enforced peace to the greater part of mankind. The Greek language was understood by all cultured men. Lines of travel had been extended by land and sea. And there was a growing expectancy of some great event for mankind. It was an opportune time when Jesus came. Let us find in the conditions of the present an opportune time for the wider spread of our Lord's kingdom.
